

Jemima

What am I?

Rabbit

Where do I live in the wild?

Near lots of grass. Somewhere I can dig holes (burrows) to live and hide in.

How am I looked after as a pet?

A good rabbit hutch, a friend to live with, plenty of cuddles and the chance to run around outside.

What do I eat?

Grass, hay, green vegetables, small amount of rabbit pellets.

What do I look like?

Big eyes on the side of my head let me look all around to see if there are any big, dangerous animals coming. Big back feet for hopping.

Why do we love Jemima?

Jemima is very sweet natured and gentle. Because of this, and her small size, she is really good for even the youngest of children to interact with.

Jemima's Story

Jemima came to us in 2017, aged almost a year old, from a family who had an unexpected litter of babies. She had been living with her sisters for a long while.

At Rachael's house, Jemima has a rabbit friend Jasper, and they both love to be out in the garden, munching on grass and dandelions. They also love to chew on branches from the apple trees. When Jemima is out in her run, she likes to keep look-out, sitting on top of her den.

You might see Jemima on her own when she is out and about, as Jasper, despite being very friendly, is not good at being carried around. Jemima would like everyone to know that it is not good for rabbits to be on their own all the time, they do need company.
